LONDON DESIGN
FESTIVAL PICKS

> BIRDS OF A FEATHER

Wallpaper and fabric designer Abigail Edwards is spreading her wings this September in collaboration with East London pottery makers MUCK Ceramics. The small (but perfectly handcrafted) launch consists of three versatile ceramic vessels, wheel-thrown by MUCK's founder Rebecca Jayne Hernandez and decorated by hand with Abigail's eye-catching black and white Bird design.

From £49 (abigailewards.com)

✓ EAST MEETS WEST

Mineheart, our favourite interiors eccentrics, have teamed up with Chinese pop artist Jacky Tsai in a daring alliance that not only blurs the boundaries between furniture and art, but also marries traditional Chinese artistry with politically potent themes. The Save Empress Wu cabinet demands a second glance: among the traditional Chinese floral watercolours you'll spot mythological figures from both East and West in this thoroughly modern fairytale. £3,749, available from 19 September (mineheart.com)

^ GLAM IT UP

If you're a regular at Brown's, Sexy Fish, The Ivy or The Arts Club, you'll already be familiar with Italian brand Studioart's luxurious leathers. This month they're celebrating their tenth anniversary with an inspired collection in which they've entrusted emerging designers to reinterpret their signature Leatherwall. We love the gold and pink Bowie-esque geometric design by The Fabrick Lab's Elaine Yan Ling Ng. Wham, bam, thank you ma'am! From €1,000. ## < FOR THE LOVE OF WALLPAPER

As part of the London Design Festival, connoisseurs of wallcoverings, Graham & Brown present House of Wallpaper this September. Taking over a Victorian townhouse in the heart of Soho, this immersive installation will take visitors on a journey through the history of wallpaper, provide insight into the creative processes that go into beautifying our four walls and showcase the latest innovations in wallpaper design and technology. 18 September to 4 October, 19 Greek Street, W1D (grahambrown.com)
